

Scavolini Chicago opens at Merchandise Mart's LuxeHome

Scavolini Chicago opened a custom-designed space at LuxeHome in Chicago's Merchandise Mart.

LuxeHome announced that Scavolini Chicago, an Italian kitchen brand, recently opened on the first floor of Chicago's Merchandise Mart. The new, custom-designed, 3,000-square-foot space will also host a grand opening celebration on Feb. 20.

Scavolini Chicago will join more than 30 premier boutiques that make up LuxeHome. Scavolini Chicago is family-owned and operated by sisters Niki and Alisha Serras and Alisha's husband Brian Gamache. After opening their first store in Detroit, in 2010, they will now expand into the Chicago market. Scavolini Chicago will have five kitchen vignettes and four bathroom vignettes.

In addition to kitchen products, in 2013, Scavolini launched the bathroom and living room product line.

"It is a very exciting time to be in this industry," says Niki Serras, co-owner at Scavolini Chicago, "interior design is more important than ever, people are looking to express their individual style through their home. Chicago is an exciting city, and we can't wait to make our mark on the residential design scene. The Merchandise Mart was the obvious choice for us, and we jumped at the opportunity to open in a premier location on the first floor (Suite 110)."

"We're excited about the opening of the Scavolini Chicago showroom, which will showcase kitchens ideal for small and large spaces, as well as design aesthetics that range from modern to transitional and everything in between," said Katherine Flaherty, MMPI's vice president of building products and special projects. "At LuxeHome, we attract homeowners from around the country looking for quality, variety and customization that only our showrooms like Scavolini Chicago provide."
